How to Use This Manual

This companion collects 2,000 prompts for the action, motion, looks and visual effects of modern film, television, advertising and animation. Every prompt is complete and ready to paste, and each card names the camera technique it uses (top right).

The manual is organised in five parts of 400 prompts each:

- Part One — Action & Stunts: fights, weapon combat, car and foot chases, vehicle stunts, explosions, high falls, heists, disasters, battles, aerial and water action, superheroes, martial arts cinema, vertigo action and survival.
- Part Two — Motion & Camera Dynamics: speed ramps, impacts, in-camera transitions, one-take action, immersive rigs, crowds, vehicles, object physics, cloth and fluids, rhythm, machines, creatures, moving light, environmental motion, camera choreography and wildlife action.
- Part Three — Cinematic Looks & Genre Styles: 16 genre signatures from blockbuster and prestige TV to horror, fantasy, western, indie, period, spy, sports, disaster, coming-of-age, musical and found footage.
- Part Four — VFX Effects: fire, destruction, magic, sci-fi interfaces, portals, particles, water, weather, creatures, transformations, space, time effects, cloaking and glitch, set extensions, practical effects and compositing.
- Part Five — Television, Advertising & Animation: sitcom, procedural, reality, sports broadcast, studio and music TV; product, food, automotive, beauty and tech ad effects; 2D principles, anime effects, 3D features, stop-motion and motion graphics.

The seven chapters that follow teach you to write these prompts yourself. Appendix A defines every camera technique used and lists the prompts that demonstrate it.

A note on action content: every prompt keeps action cinematic and non-graphic, describing choreography, stunts and spectacle rather than injury. That is also what most video models will generate reliably.

1. Anatomy of an Action & Effects Prompt

Every prompt in this manual follows the same order: Camera → Subject & Action → Environment → Effect or Detail → Look. Video models weight the opening words most heavily, so the camera move leads.

Block	What it controls	Example
1. Camera	Shot, movement, lens or frame rate	Low-angle 240fps slow-motion shot ...
2. Subject & action	Who acts and the single key beat	a stuntwoman vaulting a car hood ...
3. Environment	Where it happens and what can react	on a rain-soaked neon street ...
4. Effect / detail	Physics, VFX or secondary motion	spray erupting from her boots, sparks trailing ...
5. Look	Light, color, genre signature	teal-and-orange blockbuster grade.

Assembled:

Low-angle 240fps slow-motion shot: a stuntwoman vaulting a car hood on a rain-soaked neon street, spray erupting from her boots and sparks trailing behind a skidding motorcycle, teal-and-orange blockbuster grade.

2. Writing Action

Action is choreography. Models animate one clear beat far better than a long fight description. Write the beat, the reaction and the environment:

Element	Weak	Strong
The beat	they fight	she blocks the punch with a frying pan
The reaction	he gets hit	he stumbles back into a shelf of pots
The environment	in a kitchen	pots clattering to the tiled floor of a cramped kitchen
Scale words	a big explosion	a fireball rolling up six stories, the shockwave rippling puddles

Action principles

- One beat per clip. A fight is many clips: block, counter, fall. Chain them in the edit.
- Geography first. In chases say who chases whom and in which direction, e.g. “left to right along the canal.”
- Props make action. Tables, glass, laundry lines and market stalls give bodies something to crash through.
- Show the near miss. Tension lives in inches: “clearing the crossing as the train roars past.”
- Use stunt vocabulary: high fall, ratchet pull, wire work, breakaway glass, hero landing, barrel roll, slide under.
- Keep it non-graphic: describe force through the environment (dust, debris, shockwave) rather than injury.

3. Writing Motion & Time

Motion prompts describe how things move: speed, weight, path and what follows the movement.

Technique	How to prompt it
Speed ramp	Name the switch points: “real time into slow motion at the peak, then snapping back.”
High-speed	Give a frame rate: “1000fps” for splashes, impacts and wingbeats.
Bullet time	Say what is frozen and how the camera moves: “frozen as the camera sweeps 180 degrees.”
Transitions	Describe both scenes and the bridge: “the spin ends on a stadium stage.”
One-take	Map the route: “from the kitchen, through the swinging doors, into the dining room.”
Physics	Name the material and its reaction: “the silk ripples, the marble shatters, the honey coils.”
Secondary motion	Say what moves after the main action: hair, capes, dust, debris, water.
Rhythm	Tie motion to a beat: “every snare hit triggers a flash of light.”

4. Writing Cinematic Looks

A look is a bundle of choices that signals genre. Combine color, light, lens and texture:

Genre	Color	Light & lens	Texture
Blockbuster	teal & orange, saturated	heroic rim light, anamorphic flares	glossy, crisp
Prestige TV	muted, desaturated	soft motivated light, patient framing	subtle grain
Heist / crime	steel blue + warm highlights	sodium streetlights, glossy blacks	sleek
War	bleach bypass, browns, greens	harsh light through smoke, handheld	gritty grain
Horror	cold, sickly green	deep shadow, negative space	grain, flicker
Fantasy	golds and deep greens	painterly golden light, mist	soft glow
Indie	pastel, faded	natural light, handheld	16mm grain, halation
Musical	Technicolor primaries	theatrical spotlights, cranes	sparkle

Tip: put the look at the end of the prompt and keep it to two or three descriptors. Too many style words compete with the action.

5. Writing VFX Prompts

VFX prompts succeed when the effect has a source, a behavior and an interaction with the real environment.

Ingredient	Question	Example
Source	Where does the effect come from?	from the sorceress's palms; from the warehouse window
Behavior	How does it move and change?	spiraling, crackling, rolling up into black smoke
Interaction	What does it affect?	lighting faces blue, scattering leaves, shaking windows
Material	What is it made of?	liquid metal, glowing runes, volumetric fog, glass shards
Integration	How real should it look?	photoreal, matched lighting, practical-effects charm, anime-stylized

VFX vocabulary that models understand

- Simulation: fluid sim, rigid-body destruction, particle system, cloth sim, volumetric smoke, ocean sim.
- Compositing: green screen, set extension, matte painting, clean plate, light wrap, rotoscope, split screen.
- Practical: miniature, forced perspective, animatronic, rear projection, breakaway glass, wire work.
- Stylized: impact frame, speed lines, smear frame, energy aura, glitch, datamosh, cel shading.

6. Television, Advertising & Animation Formats

Format	Visual signature	Prompt cues
Sitcom	bright, even, wide three-wall sets	multi-camera, colorful set, comic timing
Procedural	cool tones, moving camera	walk-and-talk, glass offices, urgent energy
Reality / competition	saturated, handheld, spotlights	confessional framing, countdown clock, judges reacting
Sports broadcast	high wide angle, tight replays	broadcast clarity, slow-motion replay, cable cam
Product ad	flawless reflections, dark backdrop	motion control, exploded view, light sweep, packshot
Food ad	high-speed splashes, glossy light	1000fps, droplets frozen, appetizing color
Car ad	paint reflections, sweeping roads	drone chase, light sweep, wet asphalt
2D animation	bold outlines, flat color	squash and stretch, anticipation, smear frames
Anime action	speed lines, auras	impact frame, energy beam, dramatic stare
3D feature	soft global illumination	stylized characters, painterly skies
Stop-motion	tactile materials, slight jitter	claymation, felt, paper cutout, miniature set

7. Templates & Troubleshooting

Fill-in templates

ACTION: [camera + frame rate]: [character] [single beat] [through/over/past prop], [reaction of environment], [genre look].

MOTION: [camera]: [subject] [movement verb] [path/direction], [what follows the movement], [speed or rhythm], [look].

VFX: [camera]: [effect] [emerging from source], [behavior], [interaction with environment], [integration style].

AD: [motion-control / high-speed camera]: [product] [reveal action], [material detail], [premium backdrop], ending on a clean packshot.

ANIMATION: [camera]: [character] [action] with [principle: squash and stretch / smear / impact frame], [art style].

Troubleshooting

Problem	Fix
Action is mushy or chaotic	Cut to one beat; describe the strike and the reaction only.
Effect looks pasted on	Add interaction: light on faces, wind on clothing, debris on the ground.
Explosion lacks scale	Add a reference: "six stories," a tiny figure, a shockwave across puddles.
Slow motion feels flat	Give a frame rate and name what is suspended in the air.
Look doesn't read	Use two or three signature descriptors, not ten.
Animation looks 3D when you wanted 2D	Say "hand-drawn 2D, bold outlines, flat cel shading."
Product warps	Use motion control or a turntable, a single slow move, and a clean background.
