How to Use This Manual

This companion to The Director's Swipe File collects 2,250 movement prompts: 1,500 for human movement and 750 for animals, birds and sea creatures. Every prompt is complete and ready to paste. Every one also demonstrates a specific camera or advertising technique, labelled at the top right of its card.

The manual is organised in five parts:

- Part One — Body, Gesture & Dance: walking, running, posture, hands, faces, emotion, secondary motion, partners, and every major dance form.
- Part Two — Sport, Combat & Physical Arts: 20 sports and disciplines, from football and gymnastics to martial arts, stunts, parkour and circus.
- Part Three — Life, Work & Advertising: trades, music, children, older adults, adaptive athletes, crowds, vehicles, and eight advertising categories (fashion, beauty, food, tech, sportswear, auto & travel, home, social/UGC), plus slow-motion physics, underwater, superhero and period movement.
- Part Four — Land Animals: big cats, canids, horses, grazers, giants, bears, primates, small mammals, pets, farm animals, reptiles, amphibians and insects.
- Part Five — Birds & Sea Creatures: raptors, songbirds, waterfowl, seabirds, exotic and flightless birds, flocks, whales, sharks, reef fish, cephalopods, jellyfish, seals, shore life and the deep sea.

Before the prompts, seven short chapters teach you how to write movement prompts yourself. At the back, the Camera & Advertising Movement Library defines every technique used in the manual and lists the prompts that show it, so you can look up any move by name.

Tip: treat every prompt as a template. Keep the camera move and the movement description, then swap in your own subject, setting or brand.

1. Anatomy of a Movement Prompt

Every prompt in this manual is built from the same five blocks, always in the same order. Video models give the most weight to the first words, so the camera comes first and the look comes last.

Block	What it controls	Example
1. Camera	Shot size, angle, camera movement, lens or frame rate	Low tracking shot ...
2. Subject	Who or what moves, with one or two visual details	a golden retriever with a red collar ...
3. Movement	The action as a verb + body part + path + quality	bounding across a park, ears flapping, paws kicking up leaves ...
4. Setting	Where it happens; gives the motion a surface and a background	in a city park in autumn ...
5. Look	Light, color, texture and format	golden-hour backlight, 35mm film grain.

Assembled:

Low tracking shot: a golden retriever with a red collar bounding across a city park in autumn, ears flapping, paws kicking up leaves, golden-hour backlight, 35mm film grain.

Optional blocks for advanced control:

- Timing: “At 0s ... at 2s ... at 4s ...” to sequence beats (see Chapter 6).
- Physics: what the environment does in response — dust, splash, cloth, hair, sweat, ripples.
- End frame: how the shot settles — “ending in a stuck landing,” “settling on the logo.”

- Negative prompt: motions to rule out — “no camera shake, no extra limbs, no foot sliding.”

2. Writing the Movement

The movement block is where most prompts fail. “A man running” gives the model nothing to animate. Describe four things:

Element	Question to answer	Weak → strong
Action verb	What exactly is happening?	moving → vaulting, pirouetting, trudging, stalking
Body part	What leads the movement?	jumping → driving the knees up, arms swinging forward
Path & direction	Where does the body travel?	walking → walking toward the lens / left to right / up the stairs
Quality	How does it feel?	dancing → dancing in slow, suspended, weightless arcs

The four effort qualities (Laban)

Choreographers describe movement quality with four axes. Use one word from each row to give any action a distinct personality:

Axis	Light / indirect / sustained / free	Strong / direct / sudden / bound
Weight	floating, feathery, delicate, buoyant	heavy, powerful, stomping, grounded
Space	meandering, wandering, drifting, circling	pinpoint, direct, locked-on, beeline
Time	slow, unhurried, lingering, gradual	sudden, snapping, explosive, darting
Flow	fluid, continuous, flowing, released	controlled, rigid, staccato, held

Show the physics

The movement is believable when the world reacts to it. Add one or two physical consequences:

- Ground contact: dust puffing from each footfall, snow spraying, sand kicked up, wet footprints.
- Secondary motion: hair swinging after the head turns, a coat swirling after a spin, a tail streaming behind.
- Body response: chest heaving, sweat flying, breath steaming, muscles tensing.
- Fluids: splash crowns, water sheeting off a back, droplets suspended in slow motion.

Keep it to one main action

Current models handle one clear action per clip, with one or two supporting details. “A dancer leaps, lands, spins, falls and rolls” becomes mush. Instead, pick the peak moment, or use timeline prompting (Chapter 6) to sequence beats.

3. Matching Camera to Movement

The right camera move makes the body's movement legible. Choose the move by what the action needs the viewer to see:

Movement type	Best camera moves	Why
Fast linear travel (running, galloping, cycling)	Side tracking, low tracking, drone chase, telephoto	Keeps the subject in frame while the background streaks past, so speed reads clearly
Vertical action (jumps, dunks, leaps, breaches)	Low angle, slow motion, speed ramp, bullet time	Low angles exaggerate height; slow motion reveals the hang time
Spins and turns (pirouettes, orbits, hero poses)	Orbit, arc, locked-off full shot	Orbiting adds dimension; a locked frame lets the spin itself read
Precise hand work (cooking, crafts, beauty)	Close-up, macro, top-down, rack focus	The detail is the story; top-down shows the full gesture
Formations and crowds	Top-down drone, crane up, tilt-shift, time-lapse	Patterns only appear from above or over time
Emotion and small gestures	Slow dolly in, close-up, locked-off	Movement toward the face intensifies feeling
Impacts and splashes	1000fps high-speed, ground level, macro	Physics invisible at normal speed becomes the spectacle
Point-of-view thrills	POV, helmet cam, FPV drone, snorricam	Puts the viewer inside the body
Wildlife behaviour	Telephoto, locked-off, ground level, drone top-down	Distance looks natural and undisturbed
Underwater motion	Underwater, split-level, slow motion	Shows both the surface and the body below

Avoid conflicting motion

If the subject moves left, don't also ask the camera to pan right and zoom and orbit. Give the camera one job. Use dolly when you want parallax and zoom when you want flat magnification — models treat these words differently.

4. Advertising Movement Formulas

Commercials use a small set of proven shot formats. Each has a movement formula. Fill in the brackets:

Format	Formula	Example
Hero shot	Low-angle hero shot: [subject] [peak action], [backdrop], [dramatic light].	Low-angle hero shot: a sprinter exploding off the line, empty stadium, golden rim light.
Product interaction	Product-demo close-up: hands [using product] [one satisfying action], [clean surface].	Product-demo close-up: hands twisting open a glass jar of face cream, scooping a dollop, marble counter.
Slow-mo sensory	1000fps high-speed shot: [product/body] [splash/burst/pour], [black or white background].	1000fps high-speed shot: a model whipping wet hair, droplets suspended, black background.
Lifestyle	Natural lifestyle shot: [person] [everyday action with product], [real location], [daylight].	Natural lifestyle shot: a couple laughing while cooking with a new pan, sunny kitchen.
Turntable / 360	Turntable 360-degree spin shot: [product or model] rotating slowly, [studio light].	Turntable 360-degree spin shot: a sneaker rotating on a plinth, hard rim light.
Before / after	Split-screen before-and-after shot: left [problem], right [result].	Split-screen before-and-after shot: left a cluttered desk, right the same desk organised.

Format	Formula	Example
UGC	UGC selfie-style phone shot: [creator] [talking/reacting/using product], [home setting].	UGC selfie-style phone shot: a creator unboxing earbuds on a bed, ring-light glow.
Match-cut transition	Seamless match-cut transition shot: [action A] continues as [action B] in a new place.	Seamless match-cut transition shot: a jump on a city street lands on a beach.
Packshot finish	Commercial packshot shot: [product] settling into frame, [clean backdrop], space for logo.	Commercial packshot shot: a perfume bottle landing on wet stone, mist clearing.

Advertising movement principles

- One satisfying action: a pour, a click, a twist or a bite. Satisfaction sells.
- Hands are the hero: keep hand actions simple and clearly described to avoid AI finger errors.
- Hook in the first second: for social, start mid-action, not on a static frame.
- End on the product: finish with a stable frame that leaves room for a logo or call to action.
- Loop it: for feeds, ask for the last pose to match the first.

5. Animal, Bird & Sea Creature Movement

Animals have specific locomotion vocabularies. Models know these words, and they produce far more accurate motion than generic verbs like “moving” or “running.”

Group	Use these movement words
Four-legged gaits	walk, amble, trot, pace, canter, lope, gallop, bound, stot, prong, stalk, creep, pounce, scramble
Climbers & leapers	brachiate, swing, climb hand over hand, cling, leap, spring, glide (membranes), hang by the tail
Bird flight	flap, glide, soar, hover, stoop (dive), swoop, bank, wheel, flare to land, dynamic soaring, kettle on thermals
Bird ground motion	hop, waddle, strut, wade, toboggan, porpoise, display, preen, rouse (shake feathers)
Fish & sharks	glide, dart, school, shoal, cruise, undulate, sweep the tail, flick, hover with fin beats
Marine mammals	breach, spyhop, lobtail, fluke, pec-slap, porpoise, bow-ride, haul out, spin
Cephalopods & drifters	jet, crawl, ink, change color, flare the arms, pulse, drift, undulate
Reptiles & amphibians	slither, sidewind, coil, strike, bask, leap, kick, crawl, burrow
Insects	hover, flit, crawl, march, swarm, emerge, unfold wings, waggle

Animal prompting tips

- Name the species, not just the animal: “a red fox,” not “a fox-like animal.”
- Describe behaviour, not just motion: hunting, courting, playing, grooming. Behaviour gives the movement intent.
- Give it a habitat: animals look wrong in the wrong place, so name the savanna, reef or tundra.
- Use long lenses for wildlife: a telephoto look reads as authentic documentary footage.
- Describe the body parts that sell the motion: wings flexing, tail balancing, spine flexing, fins rippling.
- Birds need high frame rates: small wings beat faster than the eye; ask for 1000fps or slow motion.

6. Timing, Sequencing & Duration

Most clips run 4–10 seconds. Match the movement to the time available:

Movement	Ideal clip length	Note
Single gesture or expression	3–5 s	One beat; hold the end
Jump, strike, splash, pounce	3–6 s with slow motion	Build-up, peak, landing
Walk, run, gallop, swim	5–8 s	Tracking moves need time to read
Dance phrase or combo	6–10 s	One phrase per clip
Formation or flock change	8–10 s or time-lapse	Patterns need time to emerge

Timeline prompting

For multi-beat movement, sequence it explicitly:

Side tracking shot, 8 seconds. At 0s: a gymnast sprints down the runway. At 2s: she hits the springboard. At 3s: she flips over the vault in slow motion. At 6s: she sticks the landing and raises both arms.

Chaining clips

For long sequences, generate one movement per clip and use the last frame of each clip as the start frame of the next (image-to-video). Keep the camera language consistent across clips.

7. Fixing Common AI Movement Errors

Problem	Prompt fix	Negative prompt
Feet sliding or skating	Add ground contact: “heels striking the ground,” “feet planting firmly”	foot sliding, floating feet
Extra or merged limbs	Simplify to one action; use a wider shot; avoid crossing limbs	extra limbs, fused fingers, deformed hands
Morphing faces mid-shot	Use one subject with a clear description; shorten the clip	face morphing, identity change
Movement too slow or stiff	Use strong verbs and speed words: “sprinting,” “snapping,” “explosive”	static, frozen, slow motion
Movement too chaotic	Ask for one action, a locked-off or smooth camera, and “controlled”	camera shake, jitter, chaotic motion
Wrong direction of travel	State direction: “left to right,” “toward the lens”	reversed motion
Camera does the wrong move	Name only one camera move; repeat it at the end if needed	zoom, pan, orbit (whichever is unwanted)
Background frozen while subject moves	Add environmental motion: wind, crowds, water, dust	static background
Animal anatomy errors	Name the species and the gait; use a side or 3/4 view	extra legs, wrong anatomy, merged animals
Bad hands on products	Close-up of one simple hand action; keep fingers relaxed	extra fingers, distorted hands
